

Approved Jul 07 2009

You should go to Racer Café

To begin with, if I were old enough to work, and I were interested in selling fixing and changing motorized vehicles and apparel, then I would look for a job application at Racer Café. Racer Café is a family business owned by Rob W. and Eric B. Rob is my dad and he is the best dad in the world. He also had a lifelong dream of opening a motorcycle and apparel and accessories shop called Racer Café. He got the name off of a type of bike called a Café Racer. He is also very, very trustworthy and a fun person to be around. I hope you get the chance to meet him; he's funny joyful, and a wonderful dad! Eric B. is my uncle Eric. He has made his way up to manager of Racer Café. It was not one of his dreams to open a shop like this, but he found he loved doing it and what do you know now he's manager. He is also amazingly fun and trustworthy too. One of his main skills is being helpful to every customer. Every day that I see him doing his job I feel proud to be his niece. Racer Café is a place in St. Charles, Illinois. It is half of a very large warehouse that our family built up together. Here we sell motorcycles accessories and apparel. I love getting to meet all of the wonderful customers. People think that bikers are scary and mean. Well don't judge a book by its cover because I have seen most of these customers and they are some of the nicest people I have ever met. You should come to Racer Café because we will hold events and fun activities for our customers. We are open almost all week so come and visit Racer Café.

Emily Wienhoff, 2009

Rob Wienhoff's daughter